I can see the light
I turn from wrong to right shining down above from Tokyo on a less than supersonic flight and all I really want to know I really really need to know is how many times can a person try to hold it together flying too high just revolving never seeing the ground - for the sky

look in my eyes and try to tell me that you're seeing another do you feel it when you're flying above her and how many ways not the highs - problem solving believing the lows
and revolving
never seeing the ground - for the sky

now the time is right under brand new ultraviolet light on a subway underneath tokyo
I turn from wrong to right and just before I have to go how many ways there's something that I need to know something isn't right can a woman sympathise with her mother and the family life is touch and go nobody knows anymore whether love can go from one to the other

believing the lows
not the high - never knowing well I'm taking a piece of the blue sky
and revolving

never feeling the lows - only I can see the light never seeing the ground - for the sky
