At the back of my mind
Haunted by the thoughts that pass me by
Do you remember the time
When happiness was just a lie
Memories of the Seven Seas
Where the autumn leaves kept me company

Like a leaf from a tree you belong to me
Not even summer's bloom can compare to you
You can beg and plead, but you'll never be free
You belong to me, you belong to me

Staring at the ceiling
Feels like I got no feeling
Waltzing with the wind
As my innocence foxtrots my sin
So far away from yesterday
And the games we played in the daisy chains

Like a leaf from a tree you belong to me
Not even summer's bloom can compare to you
You can beg and plead, but you'll never be free
You belong to me, you belong to me

Like a leaf from a tree you belong to me
Not even summer's bloom can compare to you
You can beg and plead, but you'll never be free
You belong to me, you belong to me
