1st Verse:

Knock, knock, knock, knock you rapped on my door over and over again, waking me up from the sweetest of dreams, it was 4:30 in the morning,

The rain was pouring, and it was cold outside, there was fog from the Bay, and your eyes had not one thought of pride,

Come in I exclaimed, come in out of the cold and rain, and I began to dry from your face from what I thought was rain,

But the rain could not explain or replace why the tears continued to stain your lovely face,

You were shivering from the cold and your body needed warmth, like the tears that continued to flow from your eyes soft and with warmth,

Your heart was stained, as you lived the pain, the pain was fowl from another lover, and it was your pride where he made his claim,

Do you love me?, do you want me?
, was the question that you asked me, I need to know now, I got to know now, things are not like they used to be,

My heart said yes, but my mind said no, knowing all of the time, that I could never let you go,

Yes was my answer, my heart said you gonna feel this pain, yes was my answer, and my mind wouldn't accept the stain,

The stain that came with a broken heart, to cure the times that we were lost and apart, So stay here with me, if you promise to love us and be true, stay here with me, let's live, grow, and explore a love brand new,

Chorus:

It was always you, since the first day, it was always you, and now it's my time to say, that the love is true, the love that makes you feel this way, and now you know that it's real, the love that we share on this day,
