There is an open road on the other side of this window
Oh, to escape, oh to leave these walls behind
And every scratch in here is a day out there you won't know
Til you give in Til you let go

There is a planet where the fire never dies
There's no ticket you can buy to fly you there
So warm and light, clean and bright it purifies
Just close your eyes and see yourself

There on the sun
So bright and young

There on the sun
So bright you could be anyone

Above the clouds there is a canvas ocean blue
And all the lost balloons and rainbow ends swim there
Higher still the stars are shining out the truth
That here is there and there is everywhere

Up there on the sun
So bright and young
There on the sun
So bright you could be anyone

Here in this place
There is evidence enough that I can change
Here in this place
I'm a shadow of what I could be

Up there on the sun
So bright and young
There on the sun
So bright, so bright

There on the sun
So bright and young
There on the sun
So bright you could be anyone now
