

Smokie

"Love Remains A Stranger"

Visit "Love Remains A Stranger" on MotoLyrics.com

You spend a hundred dollar bill as if it were a dime
Seem so debonair while you sip your wine Brag about your escapades, to impress your best friend's wife
Cos love remains a stranger in your life

You try to cure your loneliness with expensive luxuries
Your sense of values have been driven to their knees
A chauffeur and a limousine, you're a rich man poor at heart
Cos love remains a stranger in the dark

Love remains a stranger
Loneliness comes screaming from your eyes
The truth, it hurts so bad you resolve to telling lies
Cos love remains a stranger from the skies

Love remains a stranger
Love remains a stranger

You spoke of having a woman once and how you made her bleed
You're so into yourself you ignored her every need Oh, she bent over backwards to keep you but your ego made her crawl
She left with a lonely stranger through it all

Love remains a stranger
Loneliness comes screaming from your eyes
The truth, it hurts so bad you resolve to telling lies
Cos love remains a stranger in disguise

Love remains a stranger
Love remains a stranger

Visit Smokie page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.