She tried to be on the other pavement
Trying to incinuate,
Sometimes, I am in danger of going too far
Said would i like to go
For tea and toast
Get your hand off my thigh
In the car, she turned to me and said,

You're not nineteen forever
Pull yourselves together
I know it seems strange but things they change
Older woman and younger man
Both of them doing all they can

Tried to get your attention
All night long, asked you once,
I asked you twice, Asked you four times
If you'd like to dance to that song
Front crawled the curb, down the stairs
And then I followed you out in the rain
Nowhere to be found, nevermind
You'll probably never look that pretty again

You're not nineteen forever
Pull yourselves together
I know it seems strange but things they change
Older woman and ever so slightly younger man
God Bless the band, they're doing all they can

You're not nineteen forever
Pull yourselves together
I know it seems strange but things they change
Older woman and ever so slightly younger man
God Bless the band, they're doing all they can

You're not nineteen forever
You're not nineteen forever
You're not nineteen forever
It's not big
You're definitely not clever
