half-life, waste before you go funny how your bee-sting touch never leaves me whole it's not enough to stay here almost trying you keep your last laugh watch this dying
it's just your half-time vertigo
and if you want an answer I don't know

if you had completed me don't think I'd be pleased with you don't think I can be with you with half of me to take half-life, nothing I call home it's lucky how these phantom bee-stings never show it's not enough to leave this falling kindly you burn my start down twice as blindly

it's just your half-light undertow

but if you need forgiveness

half-light, breaks with nothing wrong just the corner of my bed where you don't belong it's kind of you to notice no one's dying
you had your last laugh almost crying

it's just your half-life long to know and if you need a reason so it goes
