"Billy Tha Fantastic Reality"

I met this kid named billy who said he could do anything as long as he believed it from his toes to his brain his belief was the size of a mustard seed which was enough to move the mountains and us into the sea
you could walk through walls and run on water but that gets you no where so why even bother in his past life, kamala called him Siddhartha in his last life, he was a drunk who raped his daughter hes been it all before, in a dream called existence his skin and it's color is the only thing that's different but he's just a little boy with a propeller cap with a grin on his face like it's all an act he knows the world's not real and everything is what you think he blinked once made the sun purple and the grass hot pink he clapped twice and turned an airplane into a seagull earth is his canvas, the universe is his easel oh buddha billy won't you teach me your ways tell me I never had an ego and there's no such thing as hate

teach me forgiveness and eliminate my guilt tell me this world isnt real lets watch reality melt imagine nothingness, no possessions, no baggage no distractions, no addicts, no passions or habits some may call it ignorant, negative or apathetic but karma's just everything you ever regretted nothings real except god but he aint here cuz this world's just a projection of your guilt and fear he said you talk when you arent at peace with your thoughts and your fragrance shall be my breath until the apple rots he said trees don't grow in each other's shadows I blinked once he was behind me, with thought he could travel he told everybody the truth of why we exist if this was Rome he would of been on a crucifix but he got mugged downtown, they asked him for his money he smiled and gave em everything, like your average dummy

I forgive you is all that he said and when he turned around they put a bullet in his head

oh buddha billy there's a bullet head he said thank you, another women shall bear me why little billy there a bullet in your head

teach me forgiveness and eliminate my guilt
tell me this world isnt real lets watch reality melt
