

Cribs, The "We Share the Same Skies"

Visit "We Share the Same Skies" on MotoLyrics.com

A strange union the other day
It's a dead Russian, the papers say
But it would be nice if they realised
That she thought 'he is mine'

This town has got you down and I know
I was helping you out
While your hope died under northern skies and it shows
I was helping you to realise
The reason why, it was no surprise
No way

The act will pass by no-one
And I'm said to say it's not different today
Be comforted by we share the same skies
And for once pay no mind

I have decided it's best that you know
I'm still thinking about
Old lies as north-west skies grow cold
No point in denying Anxiety was my favourite feeling after jealousy
Yeah, I'll concede

That I could not be as nervous as I was
I could not, no way

Visit Cribs, The page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.