He's in a world of his own
He's in a world of his own
He'd like the time to play with his mind
He'd like the time to go

He sees the things that pass him by
And the things that he never owned
Everyone has and he has not
So he lives in a world of his own

He cries, he lies
He's cool, he's kind
He goes out on a Friday night
He gets drunk and he starts a fight

And he loses his mind
And he loses his sight
Because times are hard
And money is tight

Because he has the pressure
He has the blame
Life never changes
Forever the same

He's in a world of his own
He has a child but he doesn't know
He wanted love so he loved himself
And he's at an all-time low

He's in a world of his own, he's in a hell of his own
He watches the clock and watches the time
Watches life slip by on the assembly line
And the youth he's never known

He cries, he lies
He's cool, he's kind
He heads out on a Friday night
He gets drunk and he starts a fight

And he loses his mind
And he loses his sight

Because times are hard
And money is tight

Because he has the pressure
He has the blame
Life never changes
Forever the same

He cries, he lies
He's cool, he's kind
He heads out on a Friday night
He gets drunk and he starts a fight

And he loses his mind
And he loses his sight
Because times are hard

Because he has the pressure
He has the blame
Life never changes

He cries, he lies
He's cool, he's kind
He gets drunk and he starts a fight

And he loses his mind

Because he has the pressure
He has the blame
Life never changes

Forever the same
