Dishonesty breeds like poison in an unhealed wound
Multiply, tell a little lie to pull the wool over God's little eye
Before he makes up his mind and that wouldn't do
Life is one long 'Play For Today'

The one that uses all the four-letter words
The one that everybody pretends
They've never never heard, oh yeah

And it gets in my skin
And I find myself fitting a form
That is worn like a badge on a blazer at school
Tear it off rip it up

Stick your two fingers up at the world
And the lying little worms
That would take you for a fool
For your life has to be this way

And you can't say this
And you can't watch that It'll darken your mind, little child
A moral straight jacket to stop you running
Completely wild, oh yeah

And it's nice when being yourself behind a locked door
Talk in whispers when you're scared out of your mind, by the law
Who leave no bruises but the ones in your heart
And they're the ones that really hurt, yeah

The debate of the day, win a long holiday
You at home can decide what would be
The best way to kill, the best way to kill

And you don't stand a chance in hell
But you go down fighting to the sound of the bell
Losers all in the eyes of the men with the pens
But winners all in the end

The debate of the day, win a long holiday

You at home can decide what would be
The best way to kill, the best way to kill

And you don't stand a chance in hell
But you go down fighting to the sound of the bell
Losers all in the eyes of the men with the pens
But winners all in the end

Before he makes up his mind
Winners all in the end
