Better without you
Waited too long to shine under your shade
Your Indian summer fried my skin and I began to fade
I've been out of the sun for years behind that wall
But still I scratch my skin till it bleeds every time you call

I'm better without you, not because of you
I'm stronger without you, not because of you
I waited for all this time to break loose
I'm better alone without, not because of you

The deeper we go the more we drift apart
You never knew when to stop
Sometimes I wish you didn't even start

I'm better without you, not because of you
I'm stronger without you, not because of you
I waited for all this time to break loose
I'm better alone without, not because of you

I can't love cause you put me down
I can't hate you though you're pushing me around
What I needed to feel alive was to break away

I'm better without you
I'm stronger without you
I'm better without you
Without you
Without you
Without you

I'm better without you, not because of you
I'm stronger without you, not because of you
I waited for all this time to break loose
I'm better alone without, not because
I'm better without you
I'm stronger without you
I waited for all this time to break loose
I'm better alone without, not because of you
