"Terminal"

It was evident that I couldn't see
Because I mistook it for love
No I wasn't blind
I just chose to keep my eyes closed
I wanted to pretend
I wanted to believe this meant something

Opening my eyes meant... meant reality
Reality meant disappointment
Take me from this place

It's absurd how our convictions become less as we grow old
It's bizzare how love loses it's strength as the seasons change
How a seed; It grows in the hearts of men
It takes root inside our veins; to our thoughts

Light, love, all of the above
Faith, integrity
All these things I thought I knew were fake
Take me from this place

It's terminal!
It's terminal!
Oh wait... I think you are the cure
