I'm on that long long road to Woodbine Valley where a broken heart can go I've heard a heart can heal there in that valley where the warm breezes blow Soft rivers flow
No tears will ever fall the skies are sunny trouble and sorrow far behind And no one cares at all or seems to worry about that once upon a time
When love was kind Sometimes in our lives it's good to know That there's a place to go and hide those tears
They tell the story of a lost and broken love
And golden dreams of life that disappear Each one of us can go to Woodbine Valley where ever true love goes astray
Your dreams will start to grow releasing old mem'ries Lonely hearts will learn there is a day love comes to stay
