The clock tower.
Hour in the morning to eight seemed to
From the outside, the sound of rain coming
And that voice that accompany the clock tower
Oh, my god.

He moved to London and the later
The little Londoner girl
That little Londoner a girl
I was the little Londoner a daughter.

Noone seemed to
But outside, the sun didn't
Still raining
And its accompanying the clock tower
Oh my god

Oh, the clock tower
Tik tok tik tok
Ding dong ding dong
Time goes on, oh
Tik tok ding dong

The little Londoner girl
the new clothes you wore
And pack out with the output
Oh yes, and came out
The little Londoner girl

And get out of the house the last time you looked at the Oh yes, last time we looked at
The little Londoner girl
London girl

Four hours seemed to
The last time the city on the wanted

That little Londoner girl
Oh the little Londoner

First, the London bridge, looked at the
And then your head bowed to the ground
The clock tower is gone
On the one hand the rain
On the one hand, the clock tower
Tik tok ding dong

He moved to London and the later
The little Londoner girl
That little Londoner a girl
I was the little Londoner a daughter.

In the rain, tears mingled
The streets of london alone
Oh yes, alone, alone
That little Londoner a girl

Six hours seemed to
A tearful though
The last time looked at the clock tower
Oh tik tok ding dong

He moved to London and the later
The little Londoner girl
I was the little Londoner a daughter.
