"Who I Am"

I need to be someone who's a lot like you
Easy to see that I sure need something new
Though I try to live life my way
I think it goes to prove
That I need to be someone who's like you
And I know that you want to change me
Want to rearrange the way I fee inside
Yes, I've heard that you take
The broken hearts of lonely souls
And you make all things right
But you know who I am
Have you seen the things I've done?
Do you know who I am?
Have you seen the things I've done?
Never before, no there's never been a time
That I would implore you to take what's yours and mine
And use it in the way you will
In any way you find
Never before did I realize
