Hallowed be the suns that shun and shine their lack of a light.

I see the signs of their denial, I see the signs that something might,

Happen on the tide that comes and goes both day and night.

I see the sign of a smile, I see the signs we're back in style.

When the silence hits the wall, I'll look up and grace
them all,

With a look that stands up straight and says yeah,
there is no way there is

No way.

When the silence hits the wall, I'll look up and grace
them all,

With a look that stands up straight and says yeah,
there is no way, there

Is no way.

Tombs and a rose in soft step,

Calming aromas too.

Tones in the womb subside.

Comes to a stop in toast of,

Crowns in the clouds I see.

Tones in the womb subside.

When the silence hits the wall, I'll look up and grace
them all,

With a look that stands up straight and says yeah,
there is no way there is

No way.
