I'm learning how it feels
To be lost without it
I've learned that nothing heals
And I'm pissed about it
I'd hold it close to me
And I'd never let it go
I hope there's hope for me
When my back's against the ropes

'Cause Maybe you think that I pushed too hard
But you said you'd go twice as far

I can't believe I lost the pieces that fit to make my name
'Cause every city sings a different song
To me it's all the same
Every time I sing out
I know the words but
I always say something else
And every time I scream out you will understand,
That everything is worth more
Than what you make it seem
But your actions speak louder to me

Maybe you think that I pushed too hard
But you said you'd go twice as far
You did your best to put me on
You did your best to put me on

What are you waiting for
This world has been falling apart for too long

You did your best to put me on
