"Asteroid"

Swirling masses of rock careening through the black
An orbit unseen by the distant eyes of man
Floating through space, a distant planetoid
Collision course, waiting for the moment to destroy

Death from above, rocking the world
An unharbored menace, chaos unfurls
Death from above, block out the sun
Survivors will starve until their imminent extinction
An unheard countdown commences, even NASA is blind
But could they say if they knew
Chaos would ensue, facing the truth of their demise

Asteroid filling the sky
Asteroid reflecting in their wide eyes
Asteroid, an eternal moment in time
Paralyzed

Death from above, rocking the world
An unharbored menace, chaos unfurls
Death from above, block out the sun
Survivors will starve until their imminent extinction
The pointless construction of bombs and wars that brought them death
The destruction that man has wreaked is unmatched by the impending threat

Asteroid filling the sky
Asteroid reflecting in their wide eyes
Asteroid, an eternal moment in time
Paralyzed

Mountains and seas arise and fall
Crustal flex, the world absolved
Frozen winds begin to swirl
Putrid clouds of dust and gas engulf the world

Massive ejections through the abysmal smog
Shaking the fleas off of the dog

Hear to see the end of all, apocalyptic wrecking ball
A cosmic force to seal our fate, extinction of the human race

Burning through the sky with atomic might Laid to rest with your fears on the darkest night
