Ode To Mr. Pumpkin / Lacrimosa

Hello Mr. Pumpkin never was afraid of your grin only was infatuated with haunting my heart in the dawn you said I should go to bed

'cause yesterday's saviors are dead I know my right hand used to be my left instead so I opened my left again but it was empty then

Mr. Pumpkin
to the bedlam I have been and I heard every word that you cannot save me from myself so I've gotta find me someone else who can save me from the nothing I've become who can save me from drifting along thanks for the advice to get along with myself sometimes and that you made me decide between Tourniquet and suicide and then it reaches you who knows my heart is roaming to?

Mr. Pumpkin
I know I was a bumpkin but I heard every word that I have to change a lot that I've gotta find me a new tin god

Bye-bye Mr. Pumpkin lately I got afraid of jack-o'-lantern and when we'll meet again my hands will still be empty then

Servas a periculum
Servas a maleficum
Lacrimosa
dies illa
