"Empty"

All my devotion and misguided loyalty Swinging my sword in the garden while you pray for your enemies
All my allegiance, I loved You and You alone But who'd believe that I could mean it now that the rooster crowed?

Now we're huddled up here, trying to swallow our fear
We still smell the bread and wine, hear your words running through our minds Holding our breath now, for what comes next now Holding out for some kind of sign

But there's an empty cross, there's an empty tomb
Fire and wind now sweeping in this tiny upper room
There's a hungry world, there's a risen King Unlock the doors, what reason more could we ever need?
So sing with me, I dare you to Because there's an empty cross; there's an empty tomb

We wept from a distance, watched pieces of our dreams
Buried with you, every last wound, sealed with stone, beyond our reach Sweet, sweet Jesus, every question, every fear Vanishing, like vapor dreams now that you're standing here

Now the tears come easy, when you say you're leaving We touched the place the nails went through, wanting one more day with you But it's goodbye now, for a little while now Believing everything you said is true

But there's an empty cross, there's an empty tomb
Fire and wind now sweeping in this tiny upper room
There's a hungry world, there's a risen King
Unlock the doors, what reason more could we ever
need?

So sing with me, I dare you to Because there's an empty cross; there's an empty
tomb

We will sing this song to make Your name live on Until every heart hears of the way You rescued us [x3]

So sing with me, I dare you to Because there's an empty cross; there's an empty
tomb
