By the drug that's in your eye
By the line that's on your mind
These things are ours it's only time
It all depends which side you find
He might come unstuck
He might write us off
But write us off a thousand times
I write a song about a time
For such an open mind
There's a fear so strong inside
By the time you catch your heart
Your good intentions fall apart
He might come unstuck
He might write us off
But write us off a thousand times
I write a song about a time
Each night remains the early part
In terms of love that falls apart
And by the time you catch your heart
By the love right from the start
Each night remains the early part
In terms of love that falls apart
And by the time you catch your heart
By the love right from the start
By the time you catch your heart
