Somewhere tonight a young girl fears believin'™
Somewhere tonight someone steals a freedom
And nobody hears that a heart is breaking
A silent scream

There is blood on many streets
Mothers, sisters, brothers crying
Pain on my TV each night

Do you still believe in love?
Do you still believe in trust?
Do you still believe that everything can change?
We can make a better day
Are we close to giving up?
We've had just about enough
Do you still believe in us?

No bed to sleep in, he lives on what he's handed
No roof to protect the things we take for granted
A family of four, headlines read their lives were taken
Casualties of war

Do you still believe in love?
Do you still believe in trust?
Do you still believe that everything can change?
We can make a better day
Are we close to giving up?
I've had just about enough
Do you still believe in love?

We're all hungry but in many different ways
We're all thirsty but the wells run dry
Are we drowning in the rain?
We all need someone to hold when the nights are getting cold

Everything can change
We can make a better day
Are we close to giving up?
I've had just about enough
Just about enough

Everything can change
We can make a better day
Are we close to giving up?
Iâ€™ve had just about enough
I still believe in love
I still believe in trust
And I still believe in us
