I never thought today would matter. I never acted like it made a difference. One day I looked, my plan had shattered. And all the notes I played were wrong, discordant. Where will I go, what will I do? Can I save myself if I save you? Does it matter anyway? If I leave what will they say? I wonder, does it matter anyway? Why did I think I heard a calling? What made me think that i have something to offer? If I trip will the dominos start falling? Are you really ready to give me your sons and daughters? Where will they go? What will they be? Who will raise them, you or MTV? Does it matter anyway? When you're old, what will they say? I wonder does it matter anyway? Does it matter anyway? Can you see past today? Does it matter, does it matter anyway? Will you lead them on their way? Where will they go, what will they be? Who will raise them you or MTV? When you're old, what will they say? I wonder does it matter anyway?
