In the back of my mind a voice speaks
Spells out the master plan, now I know
She swings with the ease of a hammer
From the truth down through the past and I know

What's right went wrong
From where it started to this, the finish
I'll try to find the place in your new life

To set the fire and cover your tracks
Time will tell, the past laughs last
To set the fire and cover your tracks
Time will tell, the past laughs

Syllables will try and judge you
Will pierce the anecdote, now I know
Your plea is a case of a reason
This deletes your alibi and I know

What's right left wrong
From where it started to this, the finish
I'll try to find the place in your new life

The traps have been set
And this will change everything, everything
And the trap have been set
This will change everything, everything

To set the fire and cover your tracks
Time will tell, the past laughs last
To set the fire and cover your tracks
Time will tell, the past laughs last
