Iâ€™ve seen a little child standing on the edge of a wharf he didnâ€™t say a word but inside he was crying for love tears in his eyes cause father had left him alone on this place

when his father came back , he saw him crying and slapped him in the face

on a morning like this-why did I get up

I want to drown the world in my coffee-cup

I feel like aeroplanes fly in my head

I should have stayed in bed

Iâ€™ve heard too many prophecies that promised us a paradise to come too many ideologies told us the world will be one a day without violence would make me feel strange

Iâ€™ve seen too many killings to believe this world could ever change

On a morning like this-why did I get up

I want to drown the world in my coffee-cup

I feel like aeroplanes fly in my head

I should have stayed in bed

On a morning like this-why did I get up

I want to tell the whole world to shut up

I feel like bulldozers dig my head

I should have stayed in bed

Iâve seen too many people in this world that donât have a heart

too many individuals criticise you before you start talking behind othersâ backs is the most popular sport

Iâd love to see the day when justice can be gained without a court

Iâve seen too many miracles to keep my belief in fate whatever will happen I know that Iâll be there too late Iâve heard people loudly exclaim "weâre better than you "

strange things happen , theyâre dying , too
