Good bye

I'm trying to find you and me of past days in reverse mirrors.

Good bye

I'm trying to remember those scenes with you. just one more time.

In the hamburger shop, we were to meet.

Snatched your daddy' s car and drive in.

to get further, leaving behind the city lights

to get further, to the seashore where no one there.

We drove fast with holding your shoulder.

Parkedd in the seashore, and hear each heartbeats in the blanket till dawn.

those days. car radio played.

those days. my favorite song "like a rolling stone"

Stars were yours. and the moon was mine.

Good bye

You and me in my memory were like movie stars.

Good bye

We took our fury and tenderness in sepia films.

Drawn in the sideseat, you asked.

"Can I live in your dreams?"

probably, on different rails.

probably, we'd started walking.

In different scenes, we were all alone.

Good bye

Now I'm alone in this epilogue.

Good bye

Those memories like a flashback, I try to hold them to forget.

Good bye

I've tried to find you in back mirrors.

Good bye

Rainfalls are pounding the bonnet.

Nothing I can't see

Nothing I can't hear
Good bye
