There're lots of stories like this
It all began with a kiss
But time wasn't on their side
They knew their love would collide

But the night they spent all alone in the car
Staring at the stars, making their future plans
They knew they would never regret
They would never forget

The nights they spent
They knew they would never ever forget.
The nights they spent
They knew they would never ever forget.

Yeah those nights weren't in vain
But she took off on a train
And then it started to rain

But the night they spent all alone in the car
Staring at the stars, making their future plans
They knew they would never regret
They would never forget

The nights they spent
They knew they would never ever forget
The nights they spent
They knew they would never ever forget

Take it slow, all under control
Never wondering what could go wrong
Take it slow, all under control
Cause they knew they would never ever
Never ever forget

The nights they spent

They knew they would never ever forget
The nights they spent
They knew they would never ever forget
