

Spoon

"The Agony of Laffite"

Visit "The Agony of Laffite" on MotoLyrics.com all I ever asked of you is a copy of garage days and to tell me the truth ain't no one watching you exit Ventura Highway it's like I knew two of you man the one before and after we shook hands taking the calls but in all forgetting what's been said and after dark in a cab in L.A. forget about the meter man these are salad days comes on the radio comes on and what's being said is you're no better than Sylvia no better than sylvia

no better than sylvia
no better than sylvia
where you are and where you've been and where you've gone oh no here's a mark he's a mark on the page dishing out the wisdom of this reflexive age dotting the eyes with an eye for defining what you were so when you do that line tonight remember that it came at a steep price and keep telling yourself there's more to you than her but you're no better than sylvia
no better than sylvia
no better than sylvia
no better than sylvia
where you gone where you been and where you gone oh no

Visit Spoon page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.