(verse one)

it was a saturday this cold afternoon inside this house there lived this frightened young gurl she didn't know what she should do how she missed her mother so, she wad left home all alone with her step father, he touched her places that he shouldn't have touched, he did some things to her that he shouldn't have done, so she ran into her room, paged her mother 911, and the tragedy began for this young gurl (chours)

please dry your eyes young gurl don't cry, your beautiful

its not your fault young gurl, don't cry your beautiful, your not the one to blame, so it will be okay oneday you'll realize your beauty

(verse two)

she told her mother, her family, and friends noone believed her cause before this had been, she was filled with hurt and anger torn to test her father

cause he took her mother from her when they married she looked for a father in the men that she saw, thought that all she had to offer was her body, no one could figure out that some girl would live her life, caused from pain and unhappiness

cause she was so beautiful one day she rebelled and the young girl fell in love with another man like her stepdad, he abused her emotionally, and made her feel like she was worthless don't hold your head down low u got so much, so much to be proud of i hope day she realize and see the beauty in her eyes girl i love u your beautiful
