Sympathy can't be enough for us anymore
Good intentions washed away
Somewhere with the falling snow
And what I've always hoped I'd find
Is in the rearview

And now I know we said goodbye
No place is home without you
No, no place is home without you
Clocks are winding down in subway trains
Winters in the sky again today
But now what can I say I know
That a falling star is worth letting go
and this stubborn love inside me is hanging on
And now what can I say I've done
That I've been so high and have let you down
But this stubborn love inside me is hanging on
The only thing I know that's hanging on

Still the cities streaked with blue
And I walked down the street alone
Thinking of pulling down your driveway
The songs on the radio
And we fight a war with time
Chasing after truth

And now I know we said goodbye
No place is home without you
No, no place is home without you
Clocks are winding down in subway trains
Winters in the sky again today
And now what can I say I know
That a falling star is worth letting go
And this stubborn love inside me is hanging on
And now what can I say I've done
That I've been so high and let you down
But this stubborn love inside me is hanging on
The only thing I know that's hanging on
The only thing I know worth hanging on to

Still I know I see the end
Somewhere down the row

Water into wine
Gravel into gold
