When you come to a fork in the road
You can almost taste it
Never knowing which way to go
It's not been tested
All alone you try to take it to fake it
And is the road less traveled taken or forsaken

Now it's up to you
The path that you choose
Got to do something different
Now it's all the same
No one to blame
Got to do something different now

So you head down the road that you chose
Just keep pushing forward
And the window is trying to close
Just to shut you out
All alone you try to take it or fake it
And is the road less traveled taken or forsaken

Now it's up to you
The path that you choose
Got to do something different
Now it's all the same
No one to blame
Got to do something different

Something different

It's up to you
The path that you choose
Got to do something different now
Now it's all the same
No one to blame
Got to do something different now

It's up to you
The path that you choose
Got to do something different
Got to do something different now
