Lookin at the world when I was barely old enough Always thought what others said would never mean much
Everything was simple never had to care enough
Never thought I would be sayin words that meant so much
Viewing life more like a playground blind to what it was
All this hatred that we feel and then we call it love

All I used to feel was happiness around me
Simple thoughts and simple words
All I ever feel is emptiness around me
Nothin here can fill it in

Lookin at this place I used to think was filled with love
I had suspicions that it wasn't ever love at all
The things we care about are slowly slippin out of grasp
It's like we're livin in the limits of an hour glass
The things we have are slowly slippin runnin out of time
So take what's left of yours and I'll be sure to keep what's mine

All I used to feel was happiness around me
Simple thoughts and simple words
All I ever feel is emptiness around me
Nothin here can fill it in

All I used to feel was happiness around me
Simple thoughts and simple words
All I ever feel is emptiness around me
Nothin here can fill it in
