

Dave Smallen

"Sunday Afternoon"

Visit "Sunday Afternoon" on MotoLyrics.com

I can't recall how I got next to you
When I woke on the carpet on Sunday Afternoon
And I walked in the kitchen and you were wearing that dress
And I knew I was going to see you again

Some end in a breakup, some end in regret Some end when they don't call you, and some end in death
But I'm not quite concerned now with how this might end
Cause I know that I'm going to see you again

And the sun was in your eyes
Still you looked into mine
And before we both turned our heads
Yeah I knew I was going to see you again

I can't recall how I got next to you
As the wind shook the shutters on Sunday Afternoon
And we talked, yeah we talked, don't matter how much we said
Cause I know that I'm going to see you again

And the sun was in your eyes
Still you looked into mine
And before we both turned our heads
Yeah I knew I was going to see you again
Oh I knew I was going to see you again
Oh I know that I'm going to see you Again

Visit Dave Smallen page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.