I met a girl like you once except for she had brown hair and everyone loved her I mean everyone loved her soon as you learned her name you became best friends but they all wanted more yeah they all wanted more

And when we danced our eyes they met and everything seems different now somehow different now

And when we talked we reached some depth at least as much as we could find in between our bump and grind infatuation begins Cupid strikes again and everyone loves you I mean everyone loves you

So then I learned your name and you gave me your number I can't wait to call you but I wait to call you

And when we danced our eyes they met
and everything seems different now
somehow different now

at least as much as we could find
