Burning in my powder,
She's a bale away
Holding my way through the dark
She says come along, you'll be fine
Black Welsh Mountain I'll see you there
How you lure my faith deep
I wanna know all about
I want to know

As the wind blows
He's got his best clothes
He says I need you the most
She says it's alright
They'll never notice
But then a light wakes from the house
It calls out the duggery

It was in this way they were found
Unaware of the world
And he stood up in their light
I carry my secret across the Dell
Up the mountain and over moonlit prairies
Just to hold my baby right now

And as the wind blows
The night he vowed towards
And they surround him at last
In the awe fraught moonlight
She hear the dog fight
The skinny wayfarer
Against the warden

And as the wind blows
They put his love down
Said this is all my fault
I'll lie down your hate
She said it's alright
She blinked her dark eyes
And then they cut her
Oh they cut her away
