Living next to the reserve, forty dogs, a wolf, and karma

Living next to the dogs in a trailer is a toothless
Choctaw

Living next to the Choctaw lives a desert queen
And she fires away at every dog she sees

It's alright, say goodbye to another dog in the dirt
You are not alone, my friend, as I place you in the earth

So he kneels by the dogs' grave
And commends them to the spirit ground
See you in another place
Where there are no queens to be found
Busted up his bronco when he ran into himself
She fires away at the four-legged fellas
Of the land that can't help themselves

It's alright say goodbye to another dog in the dirt
You are not alone, my friend, as I place you in the earth

Desert queen, desert queen
Can I borrow your shotgun?
Can I borrow your shotgun, please?

Desert queen, desert queen
Can I borrow your shotgun?
Can I borrow your shotgun, please?

So I say goodbye to another dog in the dirt
You are not alone, my friend, as I place you in the earth
