Look back and I open my eyes
I hear the words like they should be heard
And it feels like a ring of a bell echoing through me

I look back and it's never the same
And that's the way that it ought to be Oh, what I feel is the sound of a change echoing through me

Move into the light
Come on into the light
Move into the light
I'll see you in the light, alright

I think on and I think of today
And what today is gonna be for us Oh, will we find all the peace that is there and needs to taken

I think on and I think it's a must
That we slow down for just a while
And I think there's an ounce of a change echoing
through me

Move into the light
Come on into the light
Move into the light
I'll see you in the light, alright

I look back and I think of a song
I change the words around to make a rhyme
But the song is the same and the change is echoing
through me

Look back and it's never the same
I leave the song like it used to be Well, then I know there's a ring of a change echoing
through me

Move into the light
Come on into the light
Move into the light

I'll see you in the light, alright
