Quiet alone, saturday's nothing again till you're home. I miss the sound you make when I blush and stare at the ground. I'm so in love that I can't understand how the world's in demand when you shine like a star too me. I'm still singing for summer where we had found one another. Please hurry back to me. Calm me down, wait until I fell loss abound. I'm so afraid that the life that I've made's the long road to losing the love that I crave. I cannot wait till the month of december, I've been alone please say we'll be together and hurry back to me
