

And Then I Turned Seven "Forget"

Visit "Forget" on MotoLyrics.com

Wasted time, wasted breath,
And for what there's nothing left
My pillow's crisp, the tears have dried,
Her selfish ways, my bloodshot eyes.
I used to wake up everyday
And hear her voice, but now waking up
Isn't the preferred choice
Holding back the anger and giving up my pride
I wish I could have seen what she would do with her lies
Clinging on to sanity but crossing the lines
A new day awaits, for my fake smile
A whole new day, a fresh new start

Forget it ever happened forget things fell apart
But now that she's not in my life
Every little thing I see has lost it's shine
The countless hours I spent trying to please her,
Would the time have been wasted had this not occurred
Holding back the anger and giving up my pride
Staring at her picture with a tear in my eyes
It's difficult to hold back all these feelings I hide
Taking in deep breaths I'm too numb inside

Visit And Then I Turned Seven page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.