Imagine a world where every city is clean.
No poor on the streets and the people are free.
Imagine a life where you can do as you please.
Nothing to stop you from living your dream.
They say you can accomplish anything.
So why not make this a reality?
We can rebuild societies.
C'mon all you got to do is believe.

Imagine a feeling that's so unreal.
It's a natural high from the clarity.
We can all change society
if we just focus and start to believe.
Unnatural disasters off the streets
clear our minds and let the world breathe.
This could all come if we work as one
'til we all unite and we get our jobs done.

Right now we are all too distant,
too blind and too resistant
to see the situations we must solve.
Our lies and cries and misconceptions
throw us in the wrong direction.
But if we change, a revolution could evolve.

Over the years friendships have died.
Wars have been fought and tears have been cried.

Enough with the hate, let's learn to forgive.
Rekindle the love and never regret.
Colors will fade if we don't take a stand.
The world will turn gray if we're not hand-in-hand.
Let's stop our fighting, let's see eye to eye.
It'll be alright, keep our hands up high.

Right now we are all too distant,
too blind and too resistant
to see the situations we must solve.
Our lies and cries and misconceptions
throw us in the wrong direction.
But if we change, a revolution could evolve.

Right now we're all too distant (we are all too distant now),
too blind and too resistant (too resistant)
to see the situations we must solve (we've got some, we've got some, we've some solving to do).
Our lies and cries and misconceptions
(misconceptions)
throw us in the wrong direction (wrong direction).
But if we change, a revolution could evolve
(could evolve, could evolve, could evolve).
