Tear back the curtain, there's nothing to see inside
If you want your freedom, it's your free will to hide
I sit there in the corner, hailing for a ride.
Staring out the window, wishing you could die.

We're only waiting for someone else
We're only waiting for someone else to blame

I look at myself and I see nothing that I like
Crowds don't make me happy, alone I don't feel right
So hold back the punches, there's no one left to fight.
Turn to look around you, there's no one by your side

We're only waiting for someone else
We're only waiting for someone else to blame

The weight on your shoulders, will drag you down
You could try much harder, but I know you won't.

Oh, I tear back the curtain, there's nothing to see inside
If you want your freedom, it's your free will to hide
'Cos you could sit there waiting, for rain to turn to wine
And go on even better, I think i'm quite alright

We're only waiting for someone else
We're only waiting for someone else
