I parked my Buick discovered my ticket was lost And I had to fly "Standby" at twice the cost and then the buzzer went off at the Security check and the hands on my body left me with no self-respect

And now my Suitcase don't fit in the overhead and the ugly blue Stewardess wishes that I would drop dead

So I climb into my seat next to the screaming baby next to the big, big fat man who's trying to steal my tan Oh I know I won't sleep and I'll get..

Jet Lag
Jet Lag
Yeah yeah

Now we're flyin' through the air
On this twenty hour flight
And my eyes can't seem to focus
And my head feels so light

And then the food tray comes around and I eat like a pig and the lady in blue says
"Baby, you better slow down You're eyes are too big"

And if you think too much Your brain'll start to drag
And you make it home to party

But your tail can't wag Oh no, and guess what You got.. (CHORUS)

I'd stop this plane
If I could
The hands on my watch say you don't look so good The movie ain't so hot You know this lousy feeling is all I got..

The plane lands with a thud and I run to my car and I tell my legs run faster and they say who do you think you are?

So I call up my date
A September playmate
I gotta get myself together
No, I can't be late She's so fine

And now she's kissing my ear says her clothes feel too tight but as she moves a little closer I fall asleep at the light and she says, "Oh baby, wake up, you got Jet Lag!"

CHORUS
