Lost my count at twenty-one or so
Sidetracked by the fork before my toes
All I'd learned and all I'd ever known
Couldn't bear the distance left to go

But you know what they mean
Cause you're so in between
How can anybody be on your side.

Lost my faith in piles of broken bones
Of my kind, though never of my own
Tried to draw a line, so I would know
What to bury, what to hide below

But you know what they mean
Cause you're so in between
How can anybody be on your side.

And now,
What's the verdict, what's the verdict,
What's the verdict now... now...
What's the verdict, what's the verdict,
What's the verdict now... now...

'Cause you know what they mean
You've been so in between
How can anybody be on your side.
Yeah, you know what they mean
You've been so in between
How can anybody be on your side.

What's the verdict, what's the verdict,
What's the verdict
What's the verdict now...
What's the verdict, what's the verdict,
What's the verdict
What's the verdict now...
Oh now...
