The beauty of this creature could only be equaled by
The extent of its paradox only be equaled by
Because it wanted two things
Opposite and conflicting
It wanted the light it wanted everything in sight
Wanted to dominate or at least to participate
But only in comforts
Of its chair and its slippers
The curiosity of the extra-ordinary creature
Was indeed limited because it could not suffer
The unknown in any shape or form
At the same time of wanting to look everywhere
Set up at the top of its tower
The creature revealed in being a spectator
Through the glass what a glorious view
Relishing the gift of so much transperence
Having had absolutely no influence
