Maybe the moon was shinin' too bright
When we fell like the leaves on that warm autumn night
Lonely and lost, lookin' for someone to hold

And maybe the sun rose too late in the dawn
Leavin' two mixed up strangers in each other's arms
Too restless to hold on but a little too late to let go

Love had no right, love had no right
To put us together like that
And then leave like a thief in the night
Love had no right

I still remember the stars in her eyes
Every time I look up in that sweet Southern sky
One night of forever was given and taken away

If time is a healer and fate will provide
Why do I still get lost in the heat of that night?
No promises broken, still I can't help feelin' betrayed

Love had no right, love had no right
To put us together like that
And then leave like a thief in the night
Love had no right

Well, I try to forget her but I know I won't let her go
And all I can see is the wind in her hair
Then this storm in my head starts to blow

Love had no right, love had no right
To put us together like that
And then leave like a thief in the night
Love had no right

Love had no right, love had no right
Love had no right, love had no right
