heaven's not enough,
if when you get there...
just another blue.
and heaven's not enough,
you think you've found it
and it loses you.

you've thought of all there is
but not enough,
and it loses you in a cloud.

"there", most everything is nothin'
that it seems,
"where" you see the things you only wanna see.

I'd fly away
to a higher plane,
to say words I resist.
to float away,
to sigh,
to breathe... forget.

and heaven's not enough,
if when I'm there I don't remember you.
and heaven does enough,
you think you know it
and it uses you.

I saw so many things,
but like a dream...
always losing me in a cloud.

'cause I couldn't cry,
'cause I turned away,
couldn't see the score.
didn't know the pain

of leaving yesterday really far behind;
in another life,
in another dream,
by a different name.
gave it all away
for a memory
and a quiet life...
and I felt the face
of a cold tonight,
still don't know the score.
but I know the pain
of leaving everything really far behind.

and if I could cry,
and if I could live what truth I did then take me there...

heaven goodbye...
