Touching a thousand dreams, feeling your memories
I guess I've never been more on my own
And the thought of you makes me cry
'Cause you made me feel like sunshine
There's a danger, you ain't forever
Watching the memory die

One more look at the, one more look at the night
One more look at the only women I've ever loved
And it's you, give me one more reason to keep believing
This dream of you holding me tight 'cause you were everything
But you go taking living your own way
Taking the dream that was mine

Maybe we should have known, we let it slip away
Now I just sit in the dark all alone
And the thought of you makes me cry
'Cause you made me feel like sunshine
I'm a stranger, you don't even know me
Taking the sun from my eyes

One more look at the, one more look at the night
One more look at the only women I've ever loved
And it's you, give me one more reason to keep
believing
This dream of you holding me tight, we had everything and I need you
Need to be near you, baby, we can't let it die

One more look at the, one more look at the night
One more look at the only women I've ever loved
And it's you, give me one more reason to keep
believing
This dream of you holding me tight
One more look at the, one more look at the night

One more look at the, one more look at the night
One more look at the only women I've ever loved
And it's you, give me one more reason to keep
believing

This dream of you holding me tight
One more look at the, one more look at the night

One more look at the, one more look at the night
One more look at the only women I've ever loved
And it's you, give me one more reason to keep
believing

This dream of you holding me tight
One more look at the, one more look at the night
