A hungry heart to regulate their breathing one more night the Winter Boys are freezing in their spam tin the Baltic moon along the Northern seaboard and down below the Winter Boys are waiting for the storm bye-bye Empire, Empire bye-bye shallow water - channel and tide and I can trace my history down the generations to my home in one of our submarines the red light flicker, sonar weak air valves hissing open half her pressure blown away flounder in the ocean see the Winter Boys - drinking heavy water from a stone bye-bye Empire, Empire bye-bye
shallow water - channel and tide

tired illusions drown in the night
down one generations to my home
in one of our submarines
one of our submarines is missing tonight seems she ran aground on manoeuvres one of our submarines
