Moments take so very long

who has time to fear?

Trust to set no precedent;

why should it be accompli?

Giving you a little less

is taking what I need.

Everything is never quite enough.

Let machinery fake my face

who has time to chase?

Digital is where it is;

love can always be replaced.

Welcome to my consciousness

welcome to our race.

Everything is never quite enough.

Can't see my face

what are you thinking?

Fill in the space, please

oh let me hear you

Sterilize behind these gates,

locked behind the green.

Even if I had you here

what we had was never clear
No more words to say to you;
no more thoughts appear Love was taking way too long
who had breath to waste?
Tired of disappointing you;
bored with everything I do.
Every day there's less of you.
Me, I've been erased

Wasis Diop also performs in his native Wolof language. I am not sure which language he sings (French or Wolof) in song "Everything is Never Quite Enough" which became a soundtrack for movie "Thomas Crown Affair" with Pierce Brosnan and Rene Russo. My email:
